

Chest drive total falling far short with 1 day to go

Students have barely covered the bottom of the Campus Chest and the already extended deadline is only a day off.

The Chest, which combines into one all the year's fund drives, opened the week with $180.30 as compared to last year's donations of $1,200 to the Community Chest, $57 to the WSSF and $1,235 to the Hayrack Fund.

Twenty three dollars and seventy-five cents had been added to the total since last Friday. A member of Kappa Psi Delta collected $10.75 and group of students added $13.

When the final count is tabulated, the meager contributions will be divided up between the Community Chest, Red Cross and World Student Service Fund.

Average below ten cents

None of the three will be greatly enriched by Omaha University's collection unless students, who have averaged about nine and one-half cents each through last week, feel more generous than they have since the drive opened.

Nebraska Wesleyan University, with a smaller enrollment than Omaha U, collected $1,700 for the WSSF alone. Omaha U's total for that cause, after Red Cross and Community Chest money is subtracted, will probably be short of $100.

Contributions of any amount may be made in room 272 or through the student collectors whose names are posted on the bulletin board.

Cheerleaders switch to inside job

It's transition time for the university's five cheerleaders. Tonight they'll do their yelling on the inside at the Tech gym as the university opens its home basketball season. The new inside job "should prove a pleasant change" from the past football season, when two of the four home grid games—Washburn and Doane—were played in a mixture of wind, snow and rain. The cheerleaders were introduced to the student body at a pep rally this morning. Pictured left to right are Jean Duncan, Lloyd Metheny, Jane Christensen, Bill Fear and Peggy Smith.

Classes adjourn for cagers' rally

Cutting classes will be legal this morning!

All classes will be dismissed at 10:25 for a pep rally to be held at 10:30 in the auditorium. This will be the student body's first opportunity to meet its '48-'49 basketball team.

The students will be led in several yells and songs by the cheerleaders and the band. The rally is sponsored by the Warriors.

This rally will precede the university's first home game of the year. Sioux Falls College will be the Indians' foe when they meet tonight in the Tech High gym at

Five lectures left in World Institute run

Opportunities to get specialized information on world affairs are still open at the university. The Institute on World Affairs will present five more lecturers in its present series.

Three of the coming speakers are Dr. M. Lacin, native of Turkey; Robert Aura Smith, foreign editor of the New York Times and R. G. Gustavson, chancellor of the University of Nebraska.

Lacin will speak on "The Near East—A Testing Ground," on Jan. 12.

Electricity is magic wand for scientist

In the "House of Magic" today a scientist will be the wizard and electricity will be his magic wand. He will prove that electricity can outmystify magic.

Day students may see how it is possible to run away from their own shadow, hear light and see sound in the Tech High Auditorium at 4 p.m. today. Evening students will get a chance to see these "impossibles" tonight at 8.

Master in Education added to degree list

Something new has been added to the graduation ceremony for 1949.

It is the degree Master of Science in Education which has been instituted by the Graduate Committee. It will be awarded upon completion of certain graduate programs in the field of professional education.

The university also offers a Master of Arts degree to the 117 graduate students registered this fall.

The Graduate Committee, headed by E. M. Hosman, administers the graduate studies.

Registration will begin January 3

Counseling for the second semester will begin Thursday and last until Dec. 18, according to Registrar Alice Smith.

Each counselor's free office hours will be posted on his door so that students may make appointments accordingly. Students should pick up registration supplies in room 248 before going to their appointments.

Official registration will begin Jan. 3 and continue through Feb. 1. Schedule cards and veterans' book cards may be called for at this time in the Registrar's Office.

Acceptance of second semester fees ends Feb. 1. An extra fee of $3 will be charged for payments made after 5 p.m. of that day.

Early registration is urged by the university administration for the convenience of all university members. Freshmen are asked to register for day school classes only. Sophomores are to register for evening classes only if it is impossible to take the course in day school.

SPEBSQSA to sing at banquet

The SPEBSQSA will be represented at the Omaha University football banquet, Dec. 13.

Hugh Wallace, director of the local chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America, has offered the services of his 50-voice male choir.

The choir includes over 200 business men from the Omaha area.

Director Wallace's choir will sing several numbers at the banquet. Wallace added "the boys could sing during the whole program and never run out of songs."

Goodyear representative here

A representative of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company will be at the university today to interview senior business administration majors.

Debaters get 50-50 record

Omaha U debaters accented the positive, but were eliminated on the negative Saturday.

Both teams netted a half-and-half record by taking all their affirmative debates and dropping all the negatives on the question of federal aid to education.

The teams of Lois Brady and Eileen Wolfe, and Gene Step and John Madden represented Omaha U at the Kearney State Teachers Debate Tournament. About 14 other schools were also there. Decisions were given on debates, but no individual tournament winner was announced.

Step and Madden took a leadoff on the other teams by meeting Kearney in a convocation debate Friday. They also appeared on the Kearney radio show in the afternoon.

Christmas music is convocation feature

Christmas vacation will get its traditional sendoff with the Christmas convocation Dec. 17. Vacation will begin at noon of the following day.

As in previous years, all 10 a.m. classes will be dismissed for the program in the auditorium.

The University Chorus, a narrator and a soloist will participate in the presentation of featured number, "Song of Christmas," arranged by Ringwald. Other features of the convocation will be a men's quartet and a string trio.

Journalism student snags publicity post

The holiday spirit of good will is going to carry on into the new year for Kenneth Bowyer, journalism student.

On Jan. 1 Bowyer takes over as publicity director of the Good Will Industries, a non-profit organization which rehabilitates handicapped persons.

His job will include promoting publicity campaigns through downtown organizations and writing press releases.

Bowyer, a senior, is on the Gateway copy desk.

Yule dance will be semiformal, without stags

For couples only—no stags.

The Christmas Dance to be held Dec. 17 at Peony Park will be a semiformal affair for couples only.

Activity card holders will be admitted free. Others will be charged 85 cents. Dance Committee Chairman Marjory Mahoney emphasized that at least one person must have an activity card to be admitted. No outside couples will be allowed to attend.

The Student Council, which is sponsoring the dance, has promised special entertainment and decorations. Members of the dance committee are Mark Gautier, June Williams, Tom Slack, Jackie Smith and Leonard Best. Miss Williams and Gautier also make up a special publicity committee.

Music for the Dance will be furnished by Don Falconer's band.

Wilson tells Players of lean theatre fare

"There is nothing new on Broadway by Americans that is good. Why don't you get busy and write?"

Kendrick A. Wilson, director of the Community Playhouse, tossed this challenge to the University Players at their Friday meeting.

Wilson, who recently returned from New York where he saw eight of the current plays, labelled this a lean season.

"Only 14 plays are running now, whereas 36 ran in the corresponding season ten years ago. And of the 14, seven are holdovers from last year or the year before," he said.

At the Players' business meeting which followed Wilson's talk, the play reading committee gave a report for next spring's production.

"Speaking of pictures . . ."

As Bill Brown's expression shows, being the Tomahawk's photo editor is a serious business. In addition to taking pictures for the yearbook, Brown must sift through almost 500 Gateway photos of the year's events and gather candid snapshots of campus life. There were almost a thousand pictures in the 1948 Tomahawk, and Judy Rutherford, the yearbook's top editor, promises "at least that many" for the 1949 edition. Brown's only comment: "Urgent. Urgent! Everything's urgent."

Bail talks to sophs, frosh today

GIs should give notice to change schools

Transferring schools under the GI Bill is the same as transferring jobs in business life. It requires advance notice.

Any vet studying under the GI Bill who wants to transfer to another school at the end of the present fall term must give the Vets Administration at least a 80-day warning.

The Sophomore Class will meet with Dr. Bail at 11:30 this morning in the auditorium for a "President's Conference." Freshmen will attend a similar conference at 12 noon today.

The first of the series of half hour conferences was held yesterday for the Junior and Senior classes. Dr. Bail has introduced the new meetings to the university.

Students are dismissed from classes and expected to attend their conference unless excused by their academic dean.

In focus . . .

A little 'push' gets a lot of spirit

"I sort of got pushed into it." That's the way Bill Fear became head cheerleader his freshman year when all the other pepsters were graduated.

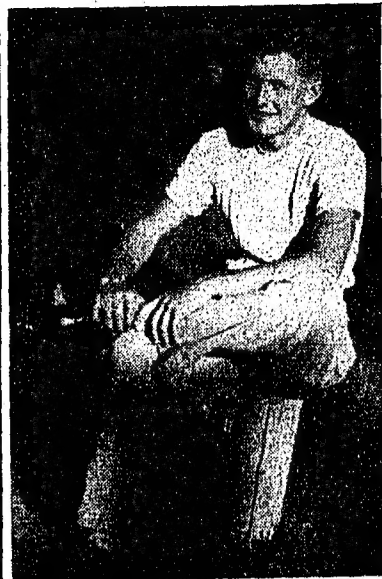

Now, in his junior year, Bill's back and the Indians've got him as head yellman again.

It's Bill who's doing the pushing now. He seems to believe the Chinese proverb "the spirit illuminates everything." So his pep team has had little trouble in getting the crowd to shout at all of the university's home football games—all four victories.

"They're giving their all for us, so we should back 'em up," he feels. Besides bolstering school spirit with animated handspings and gyrogymnastics, the tawny topped Fear cheers ardently enough through the amplifier megaphone to have earned the nickname "Brass-lungs Bill."

School spirit has jumped up amazingly since the war, he says, but "we still need more individuals to push the thing. The thing I'd like to see next year is more fellows trying out for cheerleading." He's also looking for a big boost in spirit when the band starts playing the new pep song after each touchdown.

Likes work with people

That man Fear, himself, likes "to work with people." Besides cheer leading duties, he heads the Interpep Committee and is vice president of the Interfraternity Council. He's also a member of the Warriors and Theta Phi Delta.

At Benson High School, he was senior class president and commander of the ROTC band. He lettered there during his three years of football and also picked up some agility at tumbling.

During the summer of 1947 he worked at Zion National Park and last summer he was a room clerk at Sun Valley.

A business major, he's looking for "work with people" in lines such as selling, personnel management, hotel work or insurance.

And right now, he's looking for even better school spirit during basketball season through the efforts of the Warriors, the cheerleaders and "more individuals with spirit."

GREASEPAINT AND OLD WAX

No matter what kind of music you like, this holiday month should hit it pretty close. For dancing, Jimmy Dorsey brings his nationally famous jazz orchestra to Peony Park Sunday.

The Apollo Club's annual production of the Messiah, by Handel, takes place at Joslyn Memorial the 14th.

Holiday proceedings for students really get underway Dec. 17. The annual Christmas convocation is in the auditorium at 10 a.m. That night from 9 to 12, students take over Peony ballroom for the all school Christmas Dance with music by Don Falconer.

On the next day, Dec. 18, university vacation begins at noon. That evening, in the city auditorium, the Jack Ross orchestra plays for the VFW's Police Post Ball.

Christmas day, the Ice Cycles move into the Ak-Sar-Ben Coliseum for a two week stand.

If you're looking ahead to next month, classes resume Jan. 3, the same day that With Sirens Blowing starts at the community playhouse. The play, written by Val Teal, has a university representative in its cast. Warren Wittekind portrays the policeman.

No less than a miracle . . .

Two years and four accidents ago someone suggested that the left-hand turn at 60th and Dodge was a hazard. And as is the fate of most such suggestions, nothing was done: the situation got worse.

If you have ever been a part of that perpetual traffic jam at 7:55 every morning, you know of what we speak. It is no less than a miracle that a fatal accident has been thus far avoided.

The bleary-eyed truck driver who has built up speed to get over the hill always seems to get up the most down-hill momentum right at the OU turn. And John Q. Public, already late for work, comes blaring in from Fairacres in his Supersonic '49. Into this labyrinth turns the oblivious collegian who has a fourth floor class in 72 seconds.

The Board of Regents sent a letter Oct. 19 to the City Traffic Department asking for the installation of a stop light on the left lane going west and on both lanes going east. This would allowed a steady flow leaving the city but would stop east-bound cars to allow the left-hand turn.

The city said, "No." We did get a suggestion to install two flashing amber lights. The Building and Grounds Committee is working on that lead now.

Perhaps we should import some Safety Patrol Boys from nearby Dundee School.

Strictly from the students . . .

Students doubt 'easier study' idea

If a Missouri mule happens to be wandering about the campus, pay no attention to it. It probably belongs to one of the skeptical students who answered this week's Strictly from the Students query.

The question has a suggestion for making studies easier and improving grades, but some of the students were doubting Thomases in answering What do you think of the system of informal, out-of-class discussions between professors and students about subjects discussed in class?

Jo Ann Moulton: If the kids would attend the discussions, it would probably help them with their various subjects.

Jean Banse: A very good thing if not just partly carried out.

Eileen Wolfe: It would be fine for the students but probably a little hard on the already over-worked professors.

Leonard Best: It's an excellent idea if it can be done.

Nick Caporale: Planned informal discussions seldom turn out to be informal; anyway, who has the time?

George Bedford: A good idea but impractical because of the crowded conditions.

Frank Menolascino: It is a good system of attaining a more thorough understanding between the instructor and the pupil.

Marjory Mahoney: It is wonderful to promote understanding of the subject and to help the student express his opinion more freely.

Jean Williams: It would be wonderful, but who has time, professors or students?

Tom Doyle: It offers the shy student a chance to express himself in a more informal atmosphere.

Walter Kunold: It is a very good and helpful suggestion. It would be all right if professors and students would back it.

Fred Pfeffer: The plan is worthwhile because it would aid students in understanding the subject better.

James Jankovich: Studying would be made a lot easier by these discussions.

Peggy Menck: I think it is a wonderful idea, but it would probably be rather hard to do because of our crowded conditions.

James Dimartino: I think it would be a good deal because it would give each student a chance for individual expression.

Dorothy Franzen: It would help the professors to understand the students.

Robert Brandt: It helps you to grasp what was said in class. I think it would be good.

Melvin Whitman: It helps you to get finer details than were brought out in class.

Carl Eby: I believe it should be in regular discussion classes rather than using valuable outside time.

Jo Ann Franco: I think it's a good idea.

Marilyn Hatrung: I think it's only fair that they should try to help you outside of class.

Frank Ciciulla: I don't think the students would feel free to talk as the pleased with the professors.

Sadie Lou Houlton: Fine. It promotes better relations between students and professors.

Baffling clue stops Sig Chi searchers

The Sig Chi's were all in the dark Wednesday night.

The pledges, who skipped the meeting, sat huddled in a dark basement. The actives were "in the dark" as they tried to decipher clues the pledges phoned in each hour.

In their frantic search actives left a trail of bewildered Omahans. In an office building while two searchers boosted another to peer over a transom, an amused audience of janitors, watchmen, and night office workers gathered.

All blind alleys

One of the clues read, "This isn't the weather for ice-cream, I know, but you'll find Evans is the place to go. P. S. I'm Heading for the Last Round-up."

O'Donnell, Serafini announce betrothal

The engagement of Miss Peggy O'Donnell to Raymond L. Serafini has been announced by Miss O'Donnell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene F. O'Donnell. Her fiancé is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Serafini.

Corinthians accept 15 new members

Fifteen new members of the Corinthian Society were presented with keys at a dinner Wednesday evening in the faculty clubroom. Dr. Bail, as guest speaker, enumerated the "Standards of Excellence."

The new Corinthians are students who have been on the Dean's Honor Roll for at least four semesters. Membership also includes recent graduates of the university.

Presentations of the group were made by Dean C. W. Helmstadter of the College of Applied Arts and Sciences and Dean W. H. Thompson of the College of Arts and Sciences.

Lillian Bedell, Marilyn White, Marion Heiser, Shirley Alberti, Raymond Nelson, George DeWitt, Norman Ross and Norman Barson.

This lead to an investigation of an ice-cream store, a laundry and a radio shop. The song, they later learned, referred to Roy Rogers, who is married to Dale Evans.

"Dale" was to tie in with "Glen" and numbers given in other clues to produce the phone number of the pledges' hideout.

Meanwhile, other actives spent three hours exploring the vicinity of Pledge Virginia Walters' home. At the midnight deadline pledges were still safe in the basement of the house.

Disgruntled actives served their victorious pledges the following day.

Pre-Meds to hear Dr. Harold Lueth

Dr. Harold C. Lueth, dean of the University of Nebraska College of Medicine, will speak on "Qualifications of a Good Doctor" at the annual Pre-Med banquet Tuesday. The dinner is at 6:30 in the faculty clubroom.

Films on malaria and the Pure Food and Drug Law will be shown.

Sixty tickets for $1.65 each are available before Friday from members of the club.

The banquet committee is headed by Esther Beckner who is assisted by Jeanne Thomsen and Pat Miles.

Inflation hits honor frat as dues go up

The high cost of living has hit honorary scholastic fraternities, too.

Initiation fees of Phi Eta Sigma will be raised to $11, Dean Lucas, faculty adviser, said at Thursday's meeting. Formerly fees were ten dollars.

A one dollar increase in national dues accounts for the hike. Announcement of the increase, agreed on at last month's national convention, was reported by Marshall Ruchte, OU delegate.

Doane College, Crete, Nebr., was one of four schools accepted for membership by the convention. Sixty-seven chapters are active at the present time.

Omaha's group compares "very favorably" with the others, Ruchte said.

Deans host tea for student clubs today

The Deans of Students will "tea-off" today.

From 4 to 6 p.m. the three Deans of Students will give a tea honoring the officers and faculty sponsors of all school organizations. The tea will take place in the faculty club room.

President and Mrs. Bail will be in the receiving line with Deans John W. Lucas, Ormsby Harry and Mrs. Mary Padou Young. Mrs. Lucas and Mrs. Harry will pour.

Decoration plans will carry out the holiday theme. The centerpiece will be a combination of Christmas flowers with the traditional poinsettia predominating.

Approximately 200 guests have been invited. Because of the limited seating space, no special program has been planned.

Indians meet Sioux Falls quint tonight

Cage crew after home opener win

By John Duncan
Gateway Sports Editor

Omaha University fans will have their first chance of the 1948-49 season to welcome the new edition of the Indian basketballers tonight.

Sioux Falls College of Sioux Falls, So. Dak., is the foe and the Pflasterermen will be after their second conquest in a row.

Charlie Brock's Papooses will open the evening's fireworks at 6:15 and the Varsity game will begin at 8 in the Tech gym.

The Indians may have a tough time tonight because the Sioux Falls Braves have plenty of height to throw at their opponent. Leading the lanky parade is Jerry Healey, a 6-foot 8½-inch center.

Activity No. 5 tonight . . .

Ticket No. 5 will admit students to the Omaha-Sioux Falls game tonight.

Not as tall, but just as potent in the scoring column is Vince DeVaney, a 5-foot 11-inch forward who is playing his second year of college basketball.

Height Tonight

DeVaney was on the South Dakota all-state basketball team his last two years in high school.

Three lettermen round out the Braves first string quintet. Dick Cheney, Bernard Duffy and Phil Trautner have plenty of court savvy behind them.

Coach Don Pflasterer expects to start Glen Richter and Donny Fitch at forwards, Guy Oberg at center, and Billy Holderness and Joe Arenas at the guard slots.

It's a safe bet that Coach Pflasterer's team will have to present a better passing attack against the Braves tonight than they did against a weak Doane squad last Friday.

Interceptions of bad Omaha passes gave Doane at least 16 points.

Doane B squad slaps Papooses, 45-37, in opener

Crete, Nebr.—Doane's B team led most of the way Friday night as they spoiled the Papooses opening win try 45-37.

Tiger Bob Gearhardt's 16 points, ten of which were in the first half, spelled the big difference between the two clubs.

Doane owned a 17-13 halftime lead, but the Indians came back fighting after intermission and tied the Tigers 20-all at the two minute mark. The Cretesters then began to pull away and the Papooses never came closer than three points to the home club.

Forward Bob Shober kept the Papooses in the ball game most of the way. He intercepted pass after pass and led the Omaha scoring attack with 11 points.

Coach Charlie Brock started Paul Sorensen and Joe Cupich at forwards, Bob Stedman at center, and Shober and Al Carrillo at guards. As usual, Carrillo's defensive work was outstanding.

Gibbon gets OU puck squad ready for opening game

OU Hockey Coach Freddie Gibbon is in for a bit of friendly rivalry this season.

Freddie works for the Falstaff Brewery which has also entered a team in the Amateur Hockey League. According to the head puck coach, it will be kind of rough around the office if the brewery squad should happen to beat the Indians.

But, Freddie isn't too worried about that game right now. At the moment, he is spending most of his time getting the Omaha puckmen organized.

Only one practice has been held so far, so the former Knight center doesn't have too good an idea who will be on his 12-man team. But, he did say that a few more practices should make the Indians a strong contender for the league crown.

Freddie expects to cut his squad to 15 men after a few more practices. Over 30 men have already signed up for the sport.

League play won't open till Dec. 15. The addition of the Falstaff club completes the four team league which includes Omaha U, Russell Sports and Harveys.

Indians capture first victory; nip Doane quintet, 53-52, in overtime

Richter, Arenas lead OU offensive attack

By Bob McNutt
Ass't. Sports Editor

Crete, Nebr.—Omaha University's over-confident cagers barely won a 53-52 overtime victory over a hard fighting Doane College quintet Friday night in the Tiger gym.

Joe Arenas, Ernie Flecky, Billy Holderness and Guy Oberg scored a basket each in the overtime period. However, it was Oberg's one-hander with a minute left which provided the clincher.

Omaha grabbed an early first quarter 5-3 lead on Oberg's free toss and Glen Richter's lay-up shot. Richter, who is at present the Indians chief scoring threat, garnered ten points to boost the red and black to a 21-18 halftime lead.

Indian eyes cold

The Indians suddenly soared to a 33-22 advantage midway in the third period on baskets by Arenas, Richter and Archie Arvin.

Then Indian eyes grew completely frigid. Doane, led by Ken Neihart, seized the opportunity and pulled within a point of the Pflasterermen, making it, 33-32.

Richter finally broke the five-minute Omaha scoring drought with a set-up. But, Bob Ross's field goal and gift toss shoved the Tigers into a 43-42 lead with three minutes left in the game.

A free throw by Arvin and two gift shots by cool Donny Fitch gave Omaha a 45-43 lead.

But Tiger Jack Cunningham got behind the Indians defense for a lay-up shot to shove the tilt into an overtime period as the partisan Doane fans shook the rafters with their cheering.

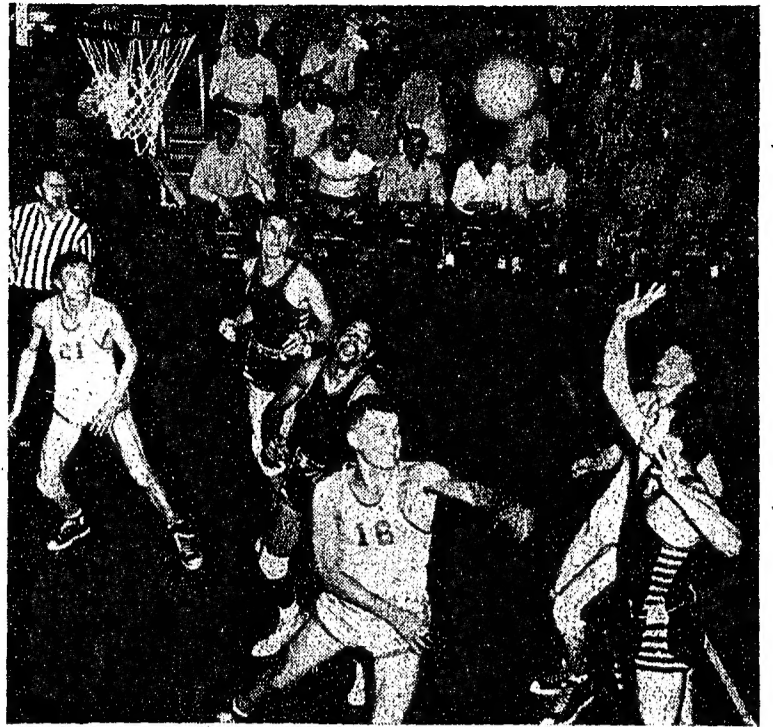

Arenas potted a set-up in the five minute overtime stanza and Flecky and Holderness followed with a basket each. After Neihart and Don Dutcher scored two baskets, Oberg hit a two pointer to spoil any Tiger hopes for an upset victory.

Neihart's bucket pulled the Crete club within a point of Omaha, but the Indians controlled the ball till the period ended.

Glen Richter led the Indian offensive attack with 16 points. Center Guy Oberg's rebounding helped the Indian cause immeasurably.
